U.S. House committee cuts all funding for purchase of key Grafton Notch parcel

But that did not appear to carry much weight with the Appropriations Committee of the U.S. House of Representa-

Another important trail, a heavily used snowmobile link in the Maine-New Hampshire trail network, also runs through the parcel, along the Bear River.

Varied perspectives on development are shared at roundtable

When an out-of-town buyer purchases land for development, he may not know a snowmobile trail crosses it.

Second homes should be bullt to operate with maximum fuel-efficiency they are not in use.

Maine is second in the U.S. in the percentage of rural land being lost to development.

Those were some of the varied perspectives brought to Tuesday's Development Roundtable, held at the Bethel Inn. The gathering was organized by the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce. About 100 developers, municipal representatives and conservation-minded spent the afternoon sharing information.

Their goal: to work toward collaboration in shaping, and preserving, land resources in the Bethel region as the area

Participants learned in a presentation by Alan Caron, president of GrowSmart Maine, that the state is currently ranked second in the nation in the percentage of rural land that is being lost to development. He said that the number of people living in rural areas has increased over the past de-

Arts Council looks ahead to its next 20 years

By ALISON ALOISIO

Over the past 20 years, the Mahoosuc Arts Council has brought more than 300 artistic performances and presentations to SAD44 schools.

The anniversary this year will bring several changes to the organization.

The MAC is viewing the transition period as an opportunity to reflect on its past role in the community, and to ask the community's help in shaping the council's future.

The council provides funding to make a variety of performances possible at all of the district schools.

It has provided programs that would otherwise not have been available; used arts projects to help youth at risk; and advocated for public support of the arts at local, state and federal levels.

In the next year, the MAC will lose two key players. Executive Director Vicki Rackliffe will retire from the position, and in June nine-year board member Chris Otten will move from the

Otten gift campaign

Otten, associated for many years with Sunday River Ski Resort and the American Skiing Co., will leave to establish CBO Consultants in Brookline, Mass., consulting on retailing and buying.

As she prepares for that personal change, Otten is undertaking a dollarfor-dollar gift campaign effort for the MAC. From now until Nov. 1, she will match, 100 percent, contributions to the organization from new donors.

And for previous donors giving again this year, Otten will match any increase in their contributions.

"We particularly want to contact people who may never have heard of the Mahoosuc Arts Council," Otten said, "people who may have moved into the community in the past two or three Otten attributes her dedication to the council's efforts to the experiences of her own three children, now grown.

"My children were products of the school system, and benefited from the program," she said.

Rackliffe and board member Linda Gamble said Otten, who has also been active in the Bethel Historical Society. Bethel Family Health Center and has sponsored Bethel bandstand concerts,

Bucket loader may go back to W'stock voters

By ALISON ALOISIO

Woodstock selectmen are leaning toward holding a special Town Meeting to consider changing their plans for purchasing a bucket loader.

It would be the second special meeting regarding equipment purchases in two months. In April, voters approved funds to purchase a backhoe the town had been leasing.

From newer to new?

At the annual Town Meeting in March, voters approved spending $60,000 for a "newer" bucket loader to replace the current one.

But since then, Woodstock has received a proposal from Beauregard Equipment of Scarborough to sell the town a new 521D Case loader for $103,000. With a trade-in of $20,000 offered on the old load-

If voters approve, the town would pay the $60,000 already allotted now, and then make four annual payments of $6,700. Town Manager Vern Maxfield said that when the board was researching loaders before the annual Town Meeting, they looked at a machine

STOP THE HARASSING NOISE CALLS

To the Editor:

At the Selectmen's meeting on May 1 the "being revised" noise ordinance was discussed. Let me first say to those who were there, "Thank you for attending." For those who weren't, please go to vote in June; let your voice be heard.

Ms. Willie spoke and used the phrase "civil war" more than once. Remember, all civil wars start with one action.

She bought a house in an area of Bethel that is termed "mixed use" in Bethel's comprehensive plan, not residential, She then cut a large number of bushes and trees around the house that would have served as a noise barrier. She also, by her own admission, moved her bedroom from the very "noisy" (?) High Street side to nearer the Funky Red Barn side. And then proceeded to make noise complaints.

This is how all of this got started. Then Mark Egeberg jumped on board. He had also bought a house in the "mixed use" area and also next to an existing bar.

John Nesbitt lives in Gould housing but has jumped into the fray also.

Hence Ms. Willie's civil war was begun.

Barry Hallett, Funky Red Barn owner, has made the DJs lower the volume, stop using bass cabinets, enclosed a portion of the porch, bought signs, purchased noise-reduction foam and purchased his own decibel meter that he uses multiple times on Fridays and Saturdays in the neighborhood to keep a handle on the noise levels.

I have a problem with people that continue to complain but do nothing to help their own situation.

The enforcement of any noise ordinance, anywhere, is difficult. But if we ask our police force, or anyone else for that matter, to do it when all those calls come in that are unfounded by the decibel readings, shouldn't the caller pay a fine? Not the first time, and not a huge amount. Just enough to stop the harassing calls.

CASINOS, JOBS AND LOTTO

To the Editor:

About a casino [in Rumford]: I want to say what a great idea and thank you to Mr. Carey, the founder of Evergreen Mountain Enterprises and all his supporters. As for Dennis Bailey of the anti gambling group Casinos No!, I have a few questions like what would be best: to fight a casino that is proposing to give 39 percent of its revenue to the state of Maine and from the other 61 percent remaining the jobs that this area needs, or would it be wiser to look at the state itself, which has Lottery available at most every store and or gas station in the state?

A casino is not as widespread as the State Lotto, a casino will provide more jobs than the State Lotto, a casino will not be under the noses of every person that stops for gas or to pick up a few things on their way home from work, a casino brings money to the people and stores in the state, the State Lotto takes money from the people through the stores in the state; this could go on but I think you get the point. Any local officials from the towns or state that try to fight this in my opinion are not looking at the best interest of the people that need to work but rather they will be looking at the state because of what the State Lotto stands to lose to the casino (the casino that will employ the people of the state).

Mr. Bailey and his No Casinos need to get their priorities in order before he makes any more statements, because the State Lotto Commission takes more from Mainers than a casino will, vet casinos offer more jobs.

I support bringing a casino to Oxford County even the town of Rumford, and I urge all residents that want to work or wish to keep your children in Maine to do the same.

ELIMINATE PORK AND EAR MARKS

Carroll Murphy (The Citizen, 5/4) misrepresents what I meant by "second guessing elected officials" in my letter regarding TABOR. Be assured I monitor the performance of government officials very carefully. I expect our legislators to make the best possible decisions that will further the well-being and prosperity of all the citizens of Maine. I do not want a few citizens usurping that power from the elected body in order to serve their own goals.

Any state official from Colorado who says that TABOR is working very well is extremely shortsighted. It was such a disaster that it was suspended for five years, as Pat Carter pointed out in a letter in the same issue. Not just education, but all essential programs suffer under the kind of strangle hold that TABOR places on government.

It is the law in the state of Maine that we have a balanced budget. thus putting a realistic restriction on spending. Unfortunately the legislators in Washington do not have to balance that budget. Perhaps that is why the federal government takes four times more money from my retirement every month than the state does.

Our national debt is something we should all be concerned about. It would be nice if the people pushing TABOR would come up with a plan that would eliminate the pork and ear marks so popular in Washington.

MARCH OF ANIMAL CRUELTY

To the Editor:

I am sure that the participants in the March of Dimes WalkAmerica are well-meaning, goodhearted people who want to do something positive.

It is for that reason I feel it is extremely important for the public to know the truth behind March of Dimes: wasteful, cruel experiments using animals, which do nothing to benefit those in need.

When people donate to the March of Dimes, they expect that their donations will go to help babies. Instead, the March of Dimes has bankrolled dozens of experiments using primates, cats, dogs, rabbits, sheep, and countless other animals on irrelevant research.

For example, March of Dimes wasted millions of dollars addicting pregnant rats and newborn opossums to nicotine, cocaine, and alcohol, even though we have known for years that these substances can harm a developing baby.

The March of Dimes has taken in close to one billion dollars at WalkAmerica events since they began in 1970; yet, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the rates for many birth defects have gone up.

Birth defects are prevented and babies are saved when research dollars go to effective and relevant research, which comes from studying human problems in human babies. Through the years, animal tests have often led scientists in the wrong direction, thus holding back medical progress and prolonging human suffering.

Enlightened health charities, such as Easter Seals, Birth Defect Research for Children, Child Health Foundation, and the Heimlich Foundation, fund humane, modern, and effective nonanimal research, such as human cell and tissue cultures, complex computer modeling and scanning techniques, and human epidemiological studies, as well as administering care to people who are already sick.

I encourage everyone to volunteer and make a positive difference, but please do your research and learn how your hard-earned dollars are being spent.

Caron also said that Maine's current growth in population primarily stems from "inmigration," rather than by births. The state is now the "oldest" in the U.S., as more retirees move here and young people move away. From a financial standpoint, said Bob Harmon of the Norway Savings Bank, people coming from out-of-state and purchasing a home or second home often put a lot of cash down, and take out relatively small mortgages.

Clear standards needed Addressing the issue of sprawl, Harmon said he does not believe it can be stopped, but that it can be controlled.

He said he favored well-designed buildings that create a favorable visual impression. He also advocated "well-thought-out standards," so that applicants coming to planning boards will be dealt with fairly.

He used the example of his own bank's effort to expand its branch in Fryeburg. Six meetings with planners were required for eventual approv-

That sentiment was echoed by Matt Dieterich of the Amer-

Conservation view Steve Wight, representing the Mahoosuc Land Trust and the Bethel Area Trails Committee, said it is important to identify "signature views," such as Bethel's Gateway property, that must be preserved to maintain the area's character.

And, he said, tracts of land can be preserved by cooperating with developers to set aside easements on part of parcels slated for development.

The Trails Committee is currently working to create and link recreational trails in the area. Wight said studies have shown that proximity to such trails increases the value of homes.

Darryl Brown of Main-Land Development Corp. said developers purchasing land may not be aware of existing recreational trails when they buy properties. "That should be worked out ahead of time," he said, so that potential buyers will know the location of such trails and conflicts can more easily be avoid-

As for sprawl, Brown, an airplane pilot, said there is still much undeveloped land in Maine visible from the air.

Comparing western Maine to what it looked like four decades ago, "It's still beautiful, and more inviting," he said.

Meeting participants also discussed the issue of maintaining affordable housing in the area, as real estate prices continue to climb.

Brown suggested that welldesigned mobile home parks. with the properties privately owned, could provide affordable housing alternatives.

Jan Kubiak of the Sustainable Western Maine organization argued for taking an energy-efficient approach in building all types of homes, utilizing solar heating and other technologies.

Scott Cole, Bethel's town manager, advocated pragmatism in balancing development, conservation and regulation.

"Our best hope is to understand the larger market. and understand what can be changed and what can't and make decisions accordingly," he said.

The day's discussion was intended to set the table for a broader community conference, expected to take place in

Tubers assume same risk as skiers

PORTLAND—The state Supreme Court last week upheld a lower court's decision to toss a lawsuit brought by a woman hurt while tubing at a ski area, ruling that the law that applies to ski areas covers tubing as well as other ways of getting down the hill. Rhonda Maddocks, who was injured at New Hermon Mountain when her tube hit a bump and went airborne in 2003, contended the ski area operator was liable for her injuries. But the Supreme Judicial Court affirmed that tubing is the same as skiing as written in Maine law, and that a person who skis "accepts, as a matter of law, the risks inherent in the sport," wrote Justice Donald Alexander. In Maine, ski areas are protected from liability for most accidents except those caused by negligent operation or maintenance. Under the law, skiing is defined broadly to include the use of a ski area "for sliding downhill on snow or ice on skis or a toboggan, sled, tube, snowboard" or "for similar uses of the ski slopes and trails." David J. Van Dyke, lawyer for Maddocks, contended it was wrong to treat tubing the same as skiing. Skiers can exert some control over their movements but people have little or no control over the direction of a tube, he said. "We argued it's more analogous to an amusement park ride than skiing."

And that's a power Hakala thinks town officers have a responsibility to start using.

"They've let people just run rampant with no regard for taxpayers' concerns. The taxpayer has got to foot the bill for these people who are running over the roads," Hakala

"If our elected officials don't step up to the plate and protect our infrastructure, there might as well not be any," he said. "We have to protect what we have."

And on the Greenwood stretch of Vernon Street he cited a rig from West Paris hauling heavy equipment.

All the citations resulted from citizens' calls to the Town Office; and all ended up costing the offenders $500.

Each of the three citations was initially for $1,000, but in all three cases the drivers pled ignorance of the posting, and the selectmen agreed to lower the fine.

The posting signs, he said, "nice bright-orange signs, and they're highly visible.'

The citations (all have been paid) added $1,500 to the town's road-repair fund, but more important, Hakala said, they put out the word Greenwood was serious about its postings.

I think it's got people's attention. I really do," he said.

But he was also realistic about the likelihood Greenwood's new approach would solve the posting-violations problem.

this critical forest resource area that is so vital to the social and economic well being of this region."

Wednesday's House vote came despite the efforts of Maine congressmen Michael Michaud and Tom Allen.

The two Democrats were part of a bi-partisan group of 122 representatives calling for an increase in funding for the Forest Legacy Program, which has already conserved more than a million acres nationwide, including some of Maine's most prized forests, wildlife areas, and popular recreation destinations. Efforts to protect the Grafton Forest are now expected to move to U.S. Senate. "It will once again fall to Maine's conservation leaders in the Senate, senators Snowe and Collins, to gain funding for Grafton Notch," said Jeremy Sheaffer, Maine projects director for The Wilderness Society.

When Bush's budget proposal was announced in February, strong local support was credited with making Grafton Notch the top nationwide Forest Legacy priority.-,-Supporters hope that support will be unflagging at this. next stage of the campaign to protect the parcel.

Gloria Wilson has closed on the sale of her 10-acre property west of Route 2. The sale included the former Carter Equipment Company garage and a very well constructed three-bedroom white ranchstyle home with a two-car garage. The new owners are Domenic Pugliares who purchased the southern half of the offered property and the Savage Construction (Development) Company who now own the northern half, During the past weekend Gary Savage was getting ready to move into the house with a number of helping hands provided by his family. For an old-timers (1950s to 1980) slant on this transaction, they will remember the Red Rooster Motel built and operated by Roland and Philippa Glines; they sold their property to Paul Carter and Gloria Wilson, who continued the motel business there with the name of the Redwood Motel. Later. after the motel closed, the Glines' house was moved to Swan's Corner; the motel was moved to Pleasant River and the restaurant/office was moved to the site now known as Shylyn's fitness center. Herschel Glines ran a very fine restaurant as part of the motel - for them a second or third career after many years of being head chefs at Gould Academy. Going back even further, a senior older-timer, Richard "Dick" Douglass, was on the scene with his father in May 1936, 70 years ago this month, when the century old house and barns of the Edward Bennett family, my grandparents, burned to the ground although almost all house furnishings and livestock were saved. At the River View Resort, some of the winter weather's revenge on the resort's boat dock was being repaired Friday. Although the floatable dock sections had been stored high and dry, the old stairway was nowhere to be seen and the frame of a new one was being constructed.

Riverside Cemetery suffered another winter attack from the big river. Mayville's ancient burial ground has lost nearly an additional 25 feet of real estate in the form of a wedge-shaped cut into the bank. There is now less than eight feet remaining between the bank's edge and the nearancient and honorable citizens is truly threatened.

I talked to my brother, Steve McLain, the other day and he said his vegetable seed order had arrived. He was getting his rototiller ready to start working on his garden.

Our granddaughter, Sidney Chapman, spent Friday night with us this past weekend. William and Annie Chapman stopped by on Sunday to tell us about their vacation in Natick, Mass., with their Aunt Karen and Uncle Greg and children.

This past weekend, Hugh and I went to Falmouth to visit with Howard and Stevie Reiche. Howard and Hugh had a meeting for the booklet that they are working on for the GHS.

The Planning Board met on May 4 at the Town Hall. I had to attend to swear in two members, Sue Saunders and Ginny McCoy, who had been re-appointed by the selectmen because their terms were up.

Howard Reiche and Hugh's next project is a booklet on Hastings. There were so many ways that Gilead and Hastings were connected. The booklet will be ready to be sold at the Friends and Family Day on June 24. It will consist of a brief outline on Hastings and several pictures.

Please remember that the GHS is always looking for information or pictures of Gilead and Hastings.

Don Katlin stopped by to discuss music for the June event. If he is available that day, he will certainly plan on being there to entertain. There are a couple of other groups who are planning on coming also. More on that at a later date.

This week's bit of history is a few facts gathered from different sources on Hastings.

River Lumber Company was formed. The year they put in the railroad, the workers were trying to get it done before winter set in. That fall the first engine arrived and began running from Gilead to Hastings. There were several buildings on the site: store, boarding house, large barn and office for the mill, just to name a few. The post office and blacksmith shop were added later. What happens with the railroad is old round.

The trees are indeed leaving out these days; one can almost hear the rebirth of all growing things. And speaking of rebirth and/or birth, Maureen Libby of Sunday River Alpacas called early Monday to tell me that the first of the baby alpacas put in an appearance at around 7:50 that morning. Mother Nell popped out her son in about ten minutes' time (eat your hearts out, ladies), and both are doing well. No name as yet for Baby Boy, but I'll keep you apprised. Oh, and don't forget that May 25 is shearing day at the 'paca

Frequent fliers at the feeders this week have been the purple finches and goldfinches, dazzling us with their brilliance. The purple finches aren't actually purple so much as raspberry red; we've often wondered who thought up the name. The male goldfinches are resplendent in their striking yellow plumage, with their female counterparts slightly more drab. Not to be outdone in the colorful department, our first ruby-throated hummingbird of the season, a male, appeared on Saturday. When the sun hits him just right, that ruby throat sparkles like the eponymous gem.

Last Thursday morning on my walk with Jake I noticed the first hobblebush blooms of the season. In my native Ohio, this would be dogwood time, and the hobblebush always puts me in mind of dogwood, because of its appearance from a distance. Also popping out this past week has been the shadbush, or serviceberry. I think that the shadbush name derives from the fact that where serviceberry grows near salt rivers, the shrub blossoms at about the time the shad are running.

Jane Hosterman and Barbara Mahler went to the Locke Mills Legion Hall on Saturday for a potluck dinner that was held as a benefit for Shirley Lowell. Jane and Barbara went to the Norway Grange Hall on Sunday to see a performance of "And Then There Were None," the play by Agatha Christie. As usual with Ms. Christie's mysteries, the audience was kept guessing until the very end.

ONE TO SAVE—James Heath III, 11, of Bethel shot his first turkey Saturday on Youth Turkey Hunt Day. The special day allows young hunters to have the woods to themselves before the regular hunt starts. Heath's bird weighed 22 pounds, with a 9.5-inch beard and ¾-inch spurs (on the legs). He plans to have it mounted. He was accompanied on the hunt by his dad, Jim.

leaves are finally starting to open up, daffodils are in full bloom and the grass is almost tall enough to start mowing. The frogs are singing, each species with their own distinct tune, peepers, "twiddlers" and "gronk-ers." The black flies are swarming in clouds and the wood ticks are having a field day around here; I really enjoy them! Not!

Last Friday afternoon, after sawing and splitting some firewood on the other side of Hutchinson Brook, I took a five-minute excursion through the woods and little fir trees on the way back to the house for a cool drink. When I got home, I found a couple ticks crawling up the back of my neck — not unusual for me

By the time I got back upton fishing in the brook the next day, but I cancelled that idea for fear of having him get covered by ticks. I have never seen so many ticks on me in my life!

On Saturday, Boston and I did go down to my little farm pond to check for frogs' eggs. What we found were at least a million tiny pollywogs. We scooped a few into an empty peanut butter jar and took them back to the house. We

My nephew, Rupert Jr., recently purchased a used portable sawmill, complete with bandsaw blade, hydraulic log loader and all the features needed to hold a log in place while you saw it. I think he has some construction or repair projects in mind to use some home-sawn lumber. Anyway, I had dragged out some poplar logs, too knotty for veneer, to practice making boards where the sawmill is temporarily set up on "the farm." Last Sunday afternoon, I got to practice making boards. I had a good time making poplar lumber, and managed to avoid (this time) sawing into any of the metal devices used to hold the log in place while you saw, a practice that makes short work of the saw blades.

Now, I've got to think of something to build with poplar lumber. Maybe a kids' play ing for the return of the hummingbirds. I had more of them in Newry than we do here, but we're planting all kinds of flowers sure to attract them.

Sunday is Mother's Day, Be sure to get your mothers cards and if possible gifts. I always got my mother a plant or something she could use. Now that she is in the nursing home, she doesn't garden, and can't use too much. Maybe I'll get my sister to call me from there so that I can speak with her. She doesn't have a phone and they never call her to the one on the floor. If my sister is there she can call me on her cell phone.

We began our new regiment of charging for construction and demolition debris. It went fairly well. There were few takers, and those that came, upon finding they had to pay, either bought vouchers or brought it home with them with plans to burn. The dry weather and the wind have made that hard, but not impossible. As advertised, the vouchers are available at Waterford Town Office, Stoneham Town Office and Kosi's, Melby's, Springer's and AJ's. The stores being willing to handle the vouchers is very much appreciated.

I have had to be in touch with the Maine State Police, again. There are those who are breaking into the Transfer Station and stealing precious metals. That is a loss to the town and all the taxpayers. Selling the metal is the only way the Transfer Station makes money. It helps defray the costs of running the station. Anyone seeing anything suspicious is asked to call the state police.

Friend Lynn Mason is back in town. Look for her and Bronny on your walks. Bronson may need surgery, but we hope he will be okay. Poor guy, wearing that harness is hard on the back and knees.

We are looking forward to getting the garden in. Some things are in already, and I am hoping to plant lettuce, spinach and the like soon. We already have peas and corn planted and the rhubarb is pot chicken soup with dumplings. The others brought salads and desserts. They all marveled about the view of the pastures and mountains from any window. Each brought her own fancy work that she was working on. I did two more strips of small tumbler pieces for the quilt that my mother started many years ago. Hand stitching is not one of my favorite pastimes.

The Extension food processing classes continued again this Monday. Pickling and canning with an acid was done by all. Vinegar salad dressings were made. We made blueberry with lemon, raspberry and mint. Each in a small bottle with various vinegars. Asparagus with garlic, baby carrots and bread and butter pickles were canned and sterilized in the hot water bath. They should be quite tasty in a few days.

The turkeys have been scratching and digging in my son-in-law's garden, making a mess of everything. They cleaned out all of the baby lettuce leaves. He has now built a covering of chicken wire that covers his raised bed. The eight-foot fence has kept the deer and elk out for they can't

The draperies for the two large windows in the dining area and a pair for the sliding glass doors are ready for new rods. The color is brown for they want earth colors. The living room draperies I made last year for the living room are a grass green. The rods extend beyond the glass onto the walls, for they like to see the full panorama of mountains from inside. The kitchen curtains of one large pair are finished also. They can now close out the darkness of night.

The birds of all kinds are extremely active this spring. Up to five Rufus hummingbirds fight over the three feeders at once. A flock of evening grosbeaks, one rose-breasted grosbeak, goldfinches, Western bluebird and today an oak woodpecker keep us entertained from morning until dark. A turkey came into the front yard and we sent her back into the field.

Bill has been busy growing flats of vegetables and herbs all spring and took two vans full in town today to set up for the Master Gardener's sale for this weekend. He may be retired but is outside right after breakfast until supper time every day. He also likes to cook and prepares many exotic, spicy meals. A cup of hot coffee greets me every morning, usually with waffles or pancake or an omelet, I will miss this when I get home. On Sunday, I arrived at oldest son Joe's home and his wife Micki and grandson Leighton Lamb in Athens, Ohio.

I talked with Dave Walton and he says Buffy is doing fine. He and Maryanne try to visit and pet him often. Ken and Kyle are doing a good job feeding him but are away all

A Birthday Party was held for Ginny Williamson Monday night, Birthday cake and an "off key" rendition of Happy Birthday were the main events of the evening. In spite of her advanced age, Ginny is not eligible for the Boston Post Cane.

Incidentally, our town's cane hasn't been seen for about fifty years. It may have burned in the fire at the top of the hill many years ago. If anyone has knowledge of that cane we would appreciate any information on it.

We have a lot of birthdays coming up in Upton during the month of May. There really are too many to list them all, but here are a few: Mae Goodrum, Ginny Williamson, Marilyn Brennon, Richard LeComte, Jack Hines and Alfred Gagnon. Those that are missing refuse to admit that they are getting old, so we will not list them. Another factor enters the scene. Postage stamps for all their birthday cards would rival the national debt.

Since we were in Florida at the time of the brush fires, we were plagued with smokey

The hurricanes of the past years left many "blow downs" in the woods, that was fuel for the fires. It has been a very dry spring. The natives were expecting it and they got it. Staying indoors was the best and wisest thing to do at this time. Staying indoors in Florida, however, is a capital offense.

The Ladies Aid met on Monday to discuss plans for this season and to welcome members back after the winter.

Barbara and C.J. Stratton's guests have returned to New Jersey.

before the ladies. Get your feeders out and you will be rewarded with a guest for the summer season. The warblers should arrive early next week. Their arrival is usually the same date every year.

Volunteer Day in Hanover was Saturday, May 6. Using shovels, rakes, Frank Morrison's leaf blower and Druce Powell's almost running dump truck, a lot of work was completed.

Following the work, a barbecue was served to everyone there with Bruce Powell cooking hamburgers and hot degs. Joan Tucker brought chips and dips; Donna Worcester, Kelly Crockett, and Brenda Gross brought other foods with the very best imaginable nut squares made by Elsie Fortin. Happy Mother's Day to all the moms. It might be best not to go fishing that day unless mom likes to fish, too.

by Sylvia Harrington A few weeks ago I mentioned that I had a hunchbacked whitebreasted nuthatch at my feeder. It was around April 1, and a lovely lady at the IGA thought I had put this news in my column as a joke. It is not a joke, the bird has been feeding just about every day. As mentioned before, it has been at my feeder for about three years.

Speaking of birdfeeders, on Sunday, I had a hummingbird at the feeder. This is the earliest I have ever noticed them. I keep records and noticed it was the 11th last year when they appeared. The feeder was put up early due to the lack of snow and milder winter conditions this year.

Moose are moving about now, so please drive with your low beams on at night. This gives you a good view of their legs to help avoid collisions. Their eyes are not reflective as deer are.

14, It is a day for all of us moms to relax, have fun, go out to eat or do whatever we want.

Get well wishes to Frank Gammon, who has been in and out of the hospital recently.

The Historical Society Museum has wonderful exhibits on the town of Woodstock, They are proud of their heritage here and honor it. The museum has a fabulous collection of antique furniture. You must see it some Saturday afternoon this summer.

The Conservation School is apparently having an anniversary soon, as they called Curator Larry Billings for information. The information given was from an article written by Kathleen Bean for the newspaper some time ago.

The museum will be open Saturday afternoons starting in June from 1 to 4 p.m. They look forward to having you visit. They enjoy having visitors, as they maintain the museum to a large degree for their benefit.

Larry Billings has put some rare paper items out in the Cultural Center. The museum also has many such items.

Larry Billings watched Billy Graham's daughter preach on TV recently. He also listened to Gospel music one evening.

On Sunday, Larry and Mary Billings went out to dinner and rode down around Hanover where Mary's childhood home is located.

The Historical Society meets the second Saturday of every month at 7 p.m.

Several former presidents of the Bethel Historical Society and at least one Charter Member are expected to be present for the 40th anniversary celebration on Thursday, May 11 (today), in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The former presidents and charter member will provide their insights into the society's journey from its first meeting in the Bethel Library on May 31, 1966 to its present status as one of the largest and best known in the state. Anyone interested in learning more about the society and its history is cordially invited to attend. Refreshments and a 40th anniversary birthday cake will follow the panel discussion.

Faye Taylor Art Show "The Old Historic House" has been selected as the theme for the 27th annual Faye Taylor Memorial Art Show on May 27 in the meeting room of the Bethel Historical Society's Dr. Moses Mason House from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. This year's theme was chosen to highlight the 40th anniversary of the society's founding in 1966. To assist the society in celebrating this milestone, students in grades one through six are encouraged to enter by crean old historic house interior or exterior. An exterior view might show a stately building with clapboards, small pane windows, wood-shingled roofs and granite steps. An interior view could include a large fireplace with a broad mantelpiece, wide board floors, dropleaf tables, ladder-back chairs, braided rugs, spinning and flax wheels, a warming pan, a highboy, willowware china and hutch. Above all, it is important to emphasize the difference between modern houses and those of the past, both in exterior appearance and in what one would find for fur-

All SAD44 elementary students (grades one through six) are invited to enter the show by submitting a finished ("finished" means having paper completely covered with color) artwork in any medium (crayons, oils, tempera, watercolors, chalk, etc.) no larger than 12 inches by 18 inches. No entry will be considered with writing or lettering (except as ating an original artwork of part of sign) on the front side.

It must be delivered to the Dr. Moses Mason House by 3 p.m., Friday, May 26, in order to be considered for a prize. On Saturday morning, at least three judges will look at all entries :: to determine how they relate to this year's theme and to choose the winners.

All entries must include on the backside, the student's full name and telephone number, teacher's name, grade level and school. Entries are to be kept flat. Contest entries may be done as a class project or may be completed at home. Questions about the contest should be directed to the society at 824-2908. Ribbons, certificates and cash prizes will .5 be awarded to the winners in ... three divisions: Grades one නී and two; Grades three and out four; Grades five and six.

Lauren Dembski, Janet Dillingham, and Shannon Moxcey will receive their bachelor's degrees in Mental Health and Human Services. Amanda Larrabee will be receiving her associate's degree in Mental Health and Human Services. A formal dinner was held in the graduates' honor at Maurice Restaurant on Friday, April 28.

Teacher Cert. Workshop People interested in becoming certified to teach in Maine are invited to attend a special workshop that will explore learning options leading to conditional or additional teacher certification. The workshop will be held at Western Maine University and Community College Center on Tuesday, May 23, from 4 to 5:30 p.m., and will link with participants at other University College locations across the state through videoconference.

The workshop will be led by Robert Ellis, director of University College at Rumford/ Mexico, and will cover the range of off-campus university programs that can lead to conditional teacher certification or to additional certification for established teachers.

"The University of Maine System campuses offer several flexible programs at a distance that allow students to concentrate courses in a particular subject area and gain credit for prior learning," says Ellis. "With careful advising, a student interested in becoming conditionally certified to teach in Maine can earn their degree by taking courses online and at a University College center or site in their community,'

University College summer and fall semesters offer a variety of online and interactive television courses of interest to aspiring teachers, including Response to Intervention and Gifted and Talented courses. A listing of courses for educators is available by visiting www.learn.maine.edu/cours-

To reserve a place in the teacher certification options workshop, individuals should contact Nikki Abbott or Shannon Moxcey at 743-9322.

University College, a service of the University of Maine System since 1989, provides statewide access to courses, degrees and support services for those who cannot pursue studies on a University System campus, University College centers offer a variety of UMS graduate and undergraduate degree and certificate programs and provide computer labs and personalized support services, including tutoring, financial aid assistance, and career counseling,

Gould Academy

Bump Heldman, the Gould Academy junior and Auburn native who made waves at this year's U.S. National Junior Championships at Sugarloaf, achieved one of his lifelong dreams this week when he became one of three high school students in the country to accept an invitation to join the U.S. Ski Team's Development

Before accepting this oncein-a-lifetime offer, Heldman and his parents, Sandy and Kris Heldman of Auburn, met with teachers and administrators at Gould Academy last week to make sure that Bump could balance his academic preparation for college with the busy travel schedule of a U.S. Ski Team athlete. Once they determined that Gould could work with Bump to maintain his academics, the decision to accept the team's offer was an easy one.

Heldman is currently ranked 3rd in downhill, 7th in slalom, 7th in giant slalom, and 7th in the super-G among racers his age in the U.S. He solidified these rankings with an outstanding performance at the U.S. National Junior Championships at Sugarloaf in March, when he finished 2nd in the combined category and 3rd in the slalom competing against TRAVELING MUSICIANS—Fifth-grade band members from all three SAD44 elementary schools recently went on tour. They began the day performing at Crescent Park, then on to Woodstock. The final stop was Andover, where they had lunch, recess and a final performance. Chorus members from each school also sang two selections. The students were accompanied by their music teachers, Kathleen DeVore and Linda Stowell.

When asked about his decision to accept the U.S. Ski

Team's offer Heldman said,

Syrovatka said of Heldman, whom he has coached for the past two years, "This young student-athlete works hard and doesn't take anything for granted. These core values will help Bump to go a long way in any future endeavor.'

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

LISTED HOMES SELL

If you are serious about selling your home, listing it with a real estate sales professional will improve your chances of selling quickly, and for top dollar. Eight out of ten homes sold today (more in some markets) are "listed" homes.

When your home is listed, your property is placed on the local Multiple Listing Service, a computerized databank to which most real estate sales professionals subscribe. The MLS contains all the pertinent information about the home, such as the sales price, the location, number of bedrooms and baths, and any special financial information. The MLS provides your home with the widest possible exposure to the market place because these are the homes that Realtors are going to show their buyers.
You may be able to sell your own home, but you should be aware that you would be facing stiff competition when it comes to attracting serious and qualified buyers.

For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling real estate, contact Cindy Hiebert at Mahoosuc Realty, 207-824-2771

Card of Thanks WEIGHT

Thank you to the citizens of the SAD44 communities for your outpouring of love, kindness, and concern shown to David Salway and his family during his long illness and in the weeks since his death.

We will be forever grateful for the vast expressions of sympathy through thoughtful notes, letters, cards, flowers, food, phone calls, and visits. The heartwarming stories of how he touched so many lives with his sense of humor and friendly manner continue to uplift us.

ton High School with the Class of 1956.

Jo was united in marriage to Melvin Pulsifer on March 31, 1962 at Groton, Conn. The couple lived in Hawaii, Michigan, Massachusetts, Washington, Alaska, North Dakota and Maine, as Mel was a member of the United States Coast Guard.

In 1996, the couple returned to LaMoure, N.D. The places were many but at every stop Jo made lifelong friends.

Jo was a giver. She gave parts of herself to everyone she knew, and many people she didn't know. Jo gave to her friends and family, along with the discouraged and to the joyful. She gave to the needed, and even those not in need. Jo gave without asking and without expecting anything in return. She gave wherever and whenever she felt her Lord

Jo's favorite four people in the world were her grandsons. Ryan, her first miracle, touched Jo's heart often by reciting Bible verses to her over the phone. Jacob was the next to come and loved to run into "Noni's" house to brag about his latest accomplishments. Jo looked forward to Benjamin coming over so she could snuggle with him for hours on end. And finally, she was instantly won over by Christian's brilliant smile and loved to give him hugs.

Jo died on Thursday, May 4, 2006 at the Jamestown Hospital in Jamestown, N.D. She was 69 years old.

She is survived by her husband, Melvin, LaMoure, N.D.; two daughters, Catherine A. (David) Heyd, Grand Rapids, N.D., and Adele J.M. (William) Heath, Fairbanks, Alaska; two brothers, Salvitore (Becky) Perrone, Baker, La., and Antonio (Kay) Perrone, Pawcatuck, Conn.; and four grandsons,
